

2023 Woman's History Month

At the Intersection of Gender, Immigration and Religion: The experiences of the Muslim Women Immigrants in the U.S.

Wednesday, March 29th | 11a.m.-12:30 p.m. | BE 110
Speaker: Sarra Ben Gorbai

In 1989, Kimberlé Crenshaw coined the term “intersectionality” to explain the overlapping and related identities and experiences of African American women in the U.S. This talk applies the concept of intersectionality to examine how gender and religion affect Muslim women immigrants’ lived experiences in the United States. Specifically, the talk will explore the impact social positioning and intersectional identities have on Muslim women immigrants’ perception of self and interpretation of their lived experiences in the United States.
